Summary

Erinn Liebhard is a dance artist making opportunities for people to experience the connective and reflective power of groove. Having grown up dancing socially at her dad's rock band's gigs, she discovered at a young age how exhilarating it can be to experience groove alongside others. Inspired to share these experiences and guided by a fondness for jazz and the American vernacular, she teaches as faculty at Winona State University, as a Teaching Artist for the Cowles Center for Dance and the Performing Arts and for Zenon Dance Company and School. She also creates her own choreographic work, and supports and presents new work by others in jazz and American vernacular dance through Rhythmically Speaking, the organization she co-founded and artistic directs. Erinn has performed for groove-driven creatives as varied as hip-hop dance theater artist Rennie Harris and the Wild Goose Chase Cloggers Appalachian clogging company, and is currently a member of Afro-Brazilian contemporary company Contempo Physical Dance. She also flexes her physical comedy muscles playing self-created character entertainer "Nerdette" for Saint Paul Saints Baseball's Entertainment Team. Also an active thought leader, Erinn's research on jazz and American vernacular dance education and creation has been published by the Journal of Dance Education, and she is an active conference presenter. She is grateful her work helps people feel the groove in their experiences, connecting people to themselves, one another and the moment while exploring history and imagining the future.
